Therapies: Therapy services such as physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy and enterostomal therapy are provided to patients for rehabilitation after an illness or surgery. Therapists also provide education on what changes a person can make in his or her daily life and living environment to live independently.

Transition of Care Program

The Transition of Care Program was designed to improve people's independence and confidence. The program provides goal-oriented, time-limited and therapy-focused care to help people at the end of their hospital stay. The program aims to help people leaving the hospital who are not ready for home care to return home safely.

A person is assessed for the program while he or she is still an inpatient at the hospital. If a person meets the criteria, a Transition of Care home visit is made within 24 to 48 hours of discharge which will focus on the following:

- Physician/provider appointment importance
- Review of "teach-back" education
- Medication reconciliation
- Assessment of compliance with self-management
